CrediaBank Introduces the inCrediables

Emmanouil Karalis, Anna Ntountounaki, Nikos Papaggelis, and the Greek Women's National Water Polo Team join CrediaBank on the journey to the top

CrediaBank, the bank that breaks banking stereotypes, proudly introduces the inCrediables: Olympic pole vaulter Emmanouil Karalis, swimming champion Anna Ntountounaki, Paralympic cyclist Nikos Papaggelis, and the World Champion Greek Women's National Water Polo Team. They are examples of integrity, teamwork, and inclusion, and CrediaBank stands alongside them every step of the way as they pursue their dreams and help create a better future for everyone.

The inCrediables are people who inspire us. Outstanding Greek athletes who make us proud by surpassing expectations and breaking stereotypes, proving that true strength is born from collaboration, trust, and respect.

Emmanouil Karalis is proof that the greatest leaps are never achieved alone. Behind every distinction, every record, and every moment of excellence lies the strength of a team, a family, and people who believe in a shared dream. Through dedication, discipline, and mental resilience, Manolo has distinguished himself internationally in pole vaulting, representing Greece at major international competitions and the Olympic Games.

Anna Ntountounaki embodies the strength and authenticity of Crete, a place that teaches people to grow and move forward with passion and soul. With significant international achievements and a career built on dedication and hard work, Anna's inCrediable journey is one of transformation - much like a butterfly that changes and soars away. It is no coincidence that the butterfly stroke is also the swimming style that established her as an elite athlete.

Nikolas Papaggelis is a symbol of strength, resilience, and limitless determination. Through his journey in Paralympic cycling, he demonstrates every day that real limitations do not exist in the body, but in the way we choose to see the world. With the support of his team, family, and the people around him, Nikolas highlights the importance of equality, accessibility, and inclusion in both sport and society.

The Greek Women's National Water Polo Team is a team that proves that the greatest achievements are born through collective effort. With remarkable international distinctions, medals at major competitions, and a consistent presence among the world's elite, the team has shown that its strength lies in functioning as one—with a shared rhythm, a shared goal, and unwavering belief in one another.

The inCrediables become the living expression of team success, combining vision, hard work, and collaboration. At CrediaBank, this is exactly what "your bank" means: standing by people's side—not simply as a bank, but as a companion in every effort, every goal, and every dream.

Because together, we go further.
